FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE (Release Date: January 6, 1995)

Amsterdam, the Netherlands. - As the latest version of ecash client software was released the next phase of DigiCash's electronic cash trial began. "We're now shipping Macintosh, MS-Windows, and X-Windows client software to users around the world," said Marcel van der Peijl as he supervised the release at DigiCash's offices in Amsterdam.

Having licensed technology from RSA Data Security, Inc. DigiCash is now providing its anonymous ecash to more than 1700 users worldwide. "We are notifying the more than 2000 people in the United States who have previously requested our software; we expect to have more than 4000 clients and more than 50 ecash shops on-line by the end of January," Mr. van der Peijl said.

The ecash trial continues to demonstrate DigiCash's payment system for internet transactions. Mr. van der Peijl continued, "Our position as the ideal payment system for the net is not questioned. Our system remains the only cash equivalent in cyberspace. Cash has proven its utility in the real world for hundreds of years. We've shown the world how to do ecash in the past three months."
